

BEAR BEING USED TO SAVE HERSELF

Steamer Acts As Big Suction
Dredger To Remove Sand
Bank About Her

The following account of the salvage work on the steamer Bear, written by a foreman actually engaged, describes what the operations were to be. The plan probably is being followed in detail. The Bear was driven ashore on Sugar Point, Cape Mendocino, June 13, and a sand bank formed about her.

"Manned by a crew of experienced logging engineers, with rigging pulleys and spool tenders from the redwood lumber camps, a fifteen-ton bull donkey engine which has been doing service at the camps of the Metropolitan Redwood Lumber Company will have a part in the floating of the wrecked steamer Bear, now lying on the beach near Cape Mendocino," says the account.

"Salvage men at the wreck, in charge of Captain Logan, representing Lloyds and the engineering crew and mates of the steamer under Captain Francke of the Portland and San Francisco Steamship Company, owners of the Bear, have assembled and connected big sand pumps, while the hold has been pumped dry and made tight. When operations start the first work will be for the sand pump to dredge a basin around the wreck.

Steamer May Save Herself

"From that time until she reaches open sea the Bear will be not much more than a big suction dredger. She is expected virtually to save herself."

"The purpose of the bull donkey will be to assist the tugs when the first attempt to move the Bear is made and before the Bear is free to use her own motive power. Two powerful tugs have been secured to assist at this stage of the work, while the engine on shore will be connected with the Bear by means of a line running out to sea, beyond the wreck, to a large rock jutting above the surface of the ocean. Blocks will be set on this rock, and through them the line from the engine will be run back to the Bear, making a typical logging engine job, with the Bear for the log and the rock serving the purpose of the usual stump.

Cargo Now Being Removed

"Longshoremen are still at work removing the cargo from the wrecked steamer. When she went ashore the Bear had on board some 2700 tons of freight, chiefly flour, grain, paper, cheese and condensed milk. About 200 tons of the freight still remains in the hold of the Bear. A publishing company bought the paper which was thrown overboard shortly after the wreck, while beachcombers secured a considerable quantity of flour, cheese and milk. The bulk of the cargo now is being hauled to the railroad for shipment."

"Until all of this cargo is out, only preliminary salvage operations can be carried on. It will be possibly a week yet before the hold is clear. Several days will then be needed for pumping out the basin around the Bear, and weather conditions may cause further delay, making it impossible for any one connected with the work to venture an opinion as to when the Bear will be floated. The weather is now the biggest factor."

Panama Canal Trade Falls Off Greatly

Second Year Sees Only Thirty-
nine Vessels From Waterway
To Honolulu

Two years ago tomorrow, on August 15, 1914, the Panama Canal was opened, and the first vessel, the American ship, the Albatross, passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific during the first year, ended August 11, 1915, sixty-five vessels arrived at Honolulu directly from the Canal; during the second year, ending today, only thirty-nine have arrived. The decrease is more marked because the first vessels were directly from Panama the first year arrived November 16, three months after the opening, and the first from Panama via other ports was the American Hawaiian steamer, Massachusetts, on September 16, 1914. The first year's bunkering business extended over only nine months.

Tie Up Was Costly
The decrease for the second year was caused by the complete blockade of the Canal from October 4, 1915, to April 15, 1916, and by the increased cost of bringing coal from Japan, which caused many vessels to be forced to come here for bunkers to go elsewhere, even after the Canal was open.

Flags of vessels calling from the Canal for the two years are as follows:

1914-15	1915-16

Americans Rare Birds

Not one American merchant vessel except American-Hawaiian, called either en route to or from the Canal during 1915-1916. There was one transport, the Buford, and one collier, the Proteus, from the Canal this second year. The fact is that a big American tramp freighter would arouse a sensation in this port—a vessel such as those of the big British lines, N. Y. K. or East Asiatic. Excluding the five ships of the American-Hawaiian and the Buford, Honolulu has seen only a few very small American vessels the last year, all bound to and from San Francisco and the Orient, the Buford of 2317 tons net being about the largest.

Of the thirty-nine vessels that called during 1915-1916, all except the Buford and Proteus were merchantmen for bunkers. Fifty-eight of the sixty-five of the previous year had been for bunkers.

Merchantmen from the Canal were as follows by months: August, six; September, four; October, nine; November, one; none in December, January, February, March and April; May, twelve; July, six; August, one.

Lost Were For Russia
As was the case during the first year, most of the vessels from the Canal were bound to Vladivostok. At least one out of five vessels from the Siberian port and three Dutch dredgers were bound thither. Generally, however, no vessel had cargo for one port only.

Twenty-seven American-Hawaiian vessels arrived from the Canal via the West Coast during the year 1914-1915. This year there were only four, the last being the Texan, here September 27, beginning with the Arizona, here December 15, there were nine A. H. vessels from the East Coast via the Straits of Magellan and the West Coast, and hereafter there was none. The Canal blockade cut down the total A. H. vessels from twenty-seven to thirteen, excluding the two San Francisco-Sugar vessels, Texan and Mexican, which have taken cargoes to San Francisco or overland delivery and returned here with little or no cargo.

Seven To Panama
There were only seven vessels bound to the Canal this year, as against twelve the year before. Four this year were merchantmen for bunkers; one collier and one transport. There had been seven for bunkers the year before.

Flags of vessels bound to the Canal were as follows:

DR. JOHN B. MURPHY FAMOUS SURGEON DIES

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)
CHICAGO, August 11.—Dr. John Benjamin Murphy, a surgeon of international fame, died today at Macine island. Born in Appleton, Wisconsin, December 21, 1857, he was nearly fifty-nine years of age. He practiced in Chicago from 1879 to 1882, studied in Germany for two years, then returning to Chicago practice. He had been recently knighted by the Pope in recognition of his achievements.

Beans Are Still High

Small white navy beans were quoted at $11 per hundred pounds, wholesale, in the San Francisco markets August 1. Navy beans are worth planting, as prices will probably be high all of next year.

The government of British North Borneo has employed an expert from the United States to make a general survey of the timber possibilities of that country.

WEEKLY MARKET LETTER

There has been no change in the condition of the egg market during the past week. Chickens in good condition are meeting a ready sale. Muscovy ducks are very plentiful and cheap.

Such green vegetables as green beans, cabbage, tomatoes and cucumbers are getting scarce and the prices are advancing. In spite of the fact that there is a shortage of lemons, lemons are not selling well and the price has dropped during the week. Most of the stock received, however, was rather poor.

Island potatoes are selling at last week's prices. It seems that there is no chance of getting higher prices again this year. During the past week the number of small hogs sent to the market has decreased but there are still a few producers sending in their hogs. These men will inevitably receive low prices as hatcheries can no longer afford to buy them, especially at this time, when there is a supply of market hogs.

The price of beef has advanced one cent during the week and this will, a doubt, have an effect on the retail price. The price of veal, mutton and pork is the same.

Feed prices are higher now than a year ago since the establishment of the Division. Local farmers should let this be a lesson to them to at least raise part of their feed at home.

A. T. LONGLEY,
Marketing Superintendent.
Honolulu, T. H., August 11, 1916.

NEW WRINKLE IS GROWING SMALL POTATOES FOR SEED

Small potatoes make good seed if they are grown especially for seed. Practical potato growers in California have made that discovery and now plant a small patch in one corner of every field, growing the hills very close together so that all the tubers are small. The labor saved at planting time where these dwarfed tubers are used as seed mounts up to a material item in cheaper cost of production. Planting the roots out of a crop of big spuds is, on the contrary, a very hard practice that is bound to result in reduced yields if persisted in.

J. S. Tuberculosis Quarantine

The federal government placed a tuberculosis quarantine on five Illinois counties October 1, 1914, in cooperation with the state livestock sanitary commission. Men in the five counties and their families tuberculosis cattle and sheep from other states until several of the latter quarantined against cattle from Illinois not accompanied by certificate of freedom from tuberculosis. The federal quarantine was withdrawn August 1, the state having passed a law to control the situation. The quarantine required that all dairy cattle shipped out be not reactors tested by United States officials.

CINCINNATI, August 14.—Christy Mathewson's Redlegs won the first game in over a week yesterday afternoon in the National League series by defeating the Chicago White Sox here.

Although this win hardly places the Reds in a running for the pennant, nevertheless it is of interest to see that the Cincyns can still win a game. The score was Cincinnati 4, Chicago 3.

In the other National League games yesterday, it took the St. Louis Cardinals eleven innings to nose out the Pirates in St. Louis. In the eleventh inning the Cards brought in the ninth run for their score column and the Pirates struck the Jolly Roger and left the field.

On the closer between St. Louis and Pittsburgh the Pirates turned the tables on the Cardinals and won by the count of 9-5.

Only the four western teams played in the American League. Cleveland climbed another notch by defeating Fielder Jones' crew in Cleveland by the score of 4-3. This places Cleveland only two full games behind the Boston Red Sox at the top of the American League.

Chicago dropped a game to the Tigers in the Windy City and the Detroit bunch thereby will soon be a bid or the place held by the Tigers in the league standing. The score was 4-9.

Following Boston at the top of the percentage column the next four teams in the league standing are the westerners. This shows the remarkable strength of the western teams on the last two days of playing. There are still six and possibly seven teams in the race for the American League pennant.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 14.—The Seals humbled the Angels in both games of a doubleheader in the Pacific Coast League series here yesterday afternoon, and thereby pulled the league leaders back into closer competition with the rest of the field for the championship honors. The runners-up gained a little on the Seraphs by winning one of the games between the Vernon Tigers and the Portland Beavers in Vernon yesterday afternoon.

The San Francisco crew had things their own way here in yesterday's exhibitions, this being the first time in more than a week that the Angels have been humbled. The Seals opened the day by beating the southern Californians by a single tally, the score standing 1-0. This was an excellent game, and might have gone either way until the latter part of the eighth session. In the second match, the local team ran away from the visitors and tallied nine circuits while they once more held their opponents scoreless. The Seals found the Los Angeles pitchers easy.

Vernon also started out with the breaks against them, the first match having gone to the visitors from the Klamath City. The Tigers managed to make two circuits which was four short of being enough to win. The score was 2-5. In the second game the Tigers turned the tables on the Beavers and ended with the long side of the card in their favor. In this game the score stood Vernon 3, Portland 2.
